A left winger with Brandon Wheat Kings, Propp — who turned 20 on Feb. 15 — had a season unequalled in the history of the Western Hockey League.

By the time the 72-game schedule reached a conclusion, Propp had smashed four single-season records and tied another. And he also be came the WHL's career leader in assists and points.

That's pretty respectable for someone who "never used to follow hockey."

Brian Propp grew up in Saskatchewan, in places like Lanigan, Jansen and Neudorf. And, like most Canadian boys, he practically grew up on skates. But, unlike others, he did not have a favourite National Hockey League team. Thus, he did not have a favourite player; a player he would possibly fashion himself after in later years.

"I just wasn't interested then," Propp said Monday night, adding that he follows the pros a bit more now, mainly because some of his

Propp came to the Wheat No one player made more of Kings as a 17-year-old, after setting a Saskatchewan Junior League scoring record that still stands. In 57 games with the Melville Millionaires, Propp fired 76 goals and added 92 assists, for a record 168 points

"I played all my minor hockey in Neudorf," explained Propp. "Then I went to Melville and played for their Junior B's. I started the next season with the Millionaires, but didn't get much ice time and went down and played with the midgets. We went to the Wrigley tournament in Oshawa that year." The next season, 1975-76, the 16-year-old Propp got lots

a year later in Brandon. In his first WHL season,

Propp picked up 135 points, including 55 goals, and was named rookie-of-the-year. Then, last year, he upped his point total to 182, including a league-leading 112 assists, and ran away with his first scoring championship.

But, Wheat Kings and their

"I'm used to playing with different players," he says. Last year, for example, I played with (Don) Hobbins and (Don) Gillen, and with Allison and Derlago. I get more scoring chances with Boschman and Allison, but it really doesn't matter to me who I play with."

While Propp was on his record-breaking course, so were the Wheat Kings. And Propp, for one, says this team is better - offensively and defensively — than the last two.

"We've got more depth," he explains. "We've got three solid lines this year and they all can score.'

When it comes to playing of ice time and it paid off in defensive hockey, Propp says this team is "more conscious of coming back and helping The success story continued out. Dunc reminds us all the time about coming back."

Propp also admits that, because this is his draft year, he has worked a little harder on the defensive aspects of his game. And he feels it has paid off.

Now, Wheat Kings are on the verge of post-season play. They won the Eastern Division crown by a country mile and fans hadn't seen anything yet. also took the league's overall When Wheat Kings wound title, for the third year in a row. Luka Doncic is set to sign a US$207 million supermax extension with the Dallas Mavericks, who sent an entourage to the Slovenian star's home country to finish off the biggest contract in franchise history.

Agent Bill Duffy told ESPN and The Dallas Morning News on Monday that Doncic and the Mavericks had agreed to terms. The team said a virtual news conference was planned for Tuesday.

News of Doncic's five-year deal, which will kick in for the 2022-23 season, came as the Mavericks re-signed his most reliable scoring partner in the backcourt, shooting guard Tim Hardaway Jr., to a $75 million, four-year contract.

The virtual news conference in Slovenia will include Doncic, owner Mark Cuban and the new general manager-coach combination of Nico Harrison and Jason Kidd.

Dirk Nowitzki, who set an NBA record of 21 seasons with the same franchise while becoming the league's No. 6 all-time scorer with the Mavericks, also made the trip to Slovenia. The 7-foot German is now a consultant for the team.

The 22-year-old Doncic was an All-Star in his second and third seasons after being named Rookie of the Year in 2018-19. He's also been firstteam All-NBA twice, which makes Doncic the first player eligible for a supermax extension off his rookie contract.

Doncic will sign the massive deal less than a week after leading Slovenia to its first Olympic berth and a fourthplace finish in Tokyo.

The NBA accomplishments are piling up fast for Doncic as well. Although he couldn't get the Mavericks past the Los Angeles Clippers in the first playoff round each of the past two seasons, Doncic averaged 33.5 points with five 40-point games.

Jackson fatigued during COVID bout BY NOAH TRISTER

It's been quite a couple of weeks for Lamar Jackson. He tested positive for COVhockey magazines and newspapers.

But, one of the reasons for Propp's interest in the professional game now is an ongoing affair known as merger. Having completed his 19th year, Propp is eligible for the NHL's universal draft in June and it is expected that he will be an early first-round selection. The question at the moment is how much bargaining power will Propp, and other early selections, have if the NHL absorbs four World Hockey Association teams, leaving but one major pro league?

"I think the value of almost all contracts will go down," offered Propp. "Guys who go early in the draft will play anyway and it won't hurt them much. But, it will hurt the guys picked in the later rounds.

With things like this in mind, Propp has spent the past season doing what he does best playing hockey.

Às Brandon general Jack Brockest says: "He comes to

Giants take RB Barkley off PUP list

The New York Giants have activated Saquon Barkley from the physically unable to perform, although it's likely the star running back will not do much immediately.

Coach Joe Judge made the announcement Monday, noting Barkley is not going to be pushed and there is no timetable to get him into a preseason game — or even play when the season opens on Sept. 12.

The NFL Offensive Rookie of the Year in 2018, Barkley tore the ACL in his right knee in the second game of last season and needed major reconstructive surgery. The Penn State product has undergone massive rehabilitation. He started training camp two weeks ago on the PUP list, but has been on the field watching his teammates.

In only three WHL seasons, Propp earned a total of 511 points, on 219 goals and 292 assists. He now is No. 1 on the WHL's all-time list for points and assists. And only two former Wheat Kings, Ron Chipperfield and Bill Derlago, lit more red lights in their careers.

Win or lose, Propp will head for Regina, where his parents now make their home, once the trail ends. He spent last summer there working for a petroleum company and playing fastball — third base and pitching — in Regina's best senior league.

"I'll go home," he says, "but other than that I'm not sure. I haven't really given next year much thought.

One thing is for sure: Next year, Brian Propp will have a definite interest in professional hockey.

ID-19 again, missing the beginning of training camp. While he was away, Buffalo's Josh Allen another quarterback from Jackson's draft class — signed a big extension, raising more questions about how Jackson's negotiations are going with the Ravens.

Now Jackson is practicing again, trying to make up for lost time while adjusting to some important new teammates.

Jackson spoke to the media Monday for the first time since returning from the COVID-19 list. He began practicing Saturday. Jackson's positive COV-ID-19 test came right before the start of training camp. He also tested positive last season and missed a game.

"Just like last time probably - fatigued, if anything. I was sleeping a lot," Jackson said. "But I'm glad to be back."

Although Jackson was in good spirits Monday, he said the positive test was tough to take, especially given the timing.

"It was crazy. I was heartbroken, because I wasn't looking forward to that at all - right before camp," he said. "It was like, not again, not right now. But it's over with.

When asked if the Ravens have talked to him about getting vaccinated, he sounded noncommittal.

"I just got off the COVID list. so I've got to talk to my team doctors and try to see how they feel about it," he said. "Keep learning as much as I can about it, and we'll go from there.'

Jackson said he tried to stay sharp by throwing in his backvard — his cousins served as receivers. Baltimore plays its first exhibition game Saturday night against New Orleans. The preseason games may not be all that significant for a player of Jackson's stature, but he could use time on the field.

Baltimore added receiver Sammy Watkins in the offseason and drafted receiver Rashod Bateman, part of an effort to improve what was the lowest passing output in the league a season ago.
